Key topics covered

Education V Level

You will gain an insight into education across every stage of development. This will include:
Session planning, professional communication, inclusive practice, risk assessment, assessment and planning cycles.

The Education V Level is a brand-new Level 3 qualification designed to give you the ideal blend of practical knowledge and academic flexibility.

Equivalent to one A-Level, it lets you explore key areas of teaching, child development, and learning support

Why Study the Subject/what students Like about it

The Education V level encompasses the study of different settings, roles, and educational frameworks that support learning, child development, and individual needs. The subject includes a breadth of focal points across the field to build students' understanding of the varied aspects of working within modern learning and early years environments. This includes exploring contemporary educational research, understanding the critical importance of safeguarding vulnerable learners, analysing strategies that promote inclusion and well-being, and applying principles of psychology to understand cognitive growth, behaviour, and learning

Opportunities outside the classroom

The Social Sciences Department provides a range of opportunities for students to visit, experience and listen to professionals of a range of roles.

The Social Sciences Department has strong links with UEA, as well as other organisations, who deliver sessions on their specialisms and offer students advice on their future career pathways. This includes early years practitioners, nursing, midwifery and social work practitioners within the local area.

Future progression/career routes

Upon completion, V Levels offer UCAS points for progression into Higher Education (University), entry into Higher/Degree Apprenticeships, or direct entry into skilled employment.

Opportunities include: teaching, early years practitioner, child psychologist, play therapist.
